resumen / brief description >

ROSe was the project for an interactive web-platform dedicated to the autoedition of Suedtirols cultural landscape, production and its creators, the project was iniciated by Benno Barth and Marion Piffer Damiani who won with their concept a competition, launched by the goverment of Suedtirol, which asked for ideas to edit a book about the same theme. Benno and Marion won this competition with a radical proposal: instead of a "definite printed book" they presented an open wiki-based platform, free to edit to all those who are part of this culture, in a next step they called us to ask for a collaboration, the next months we were developing the technical and artistic fine concept, created the name an the logo (ROSe > Reflexive - Objective - Subjective - Electronic) and did various presentations to the people of the local government of Suedtirol in Bolzano. after some "yes" and some "maybies", some "for sure" and some "tommorrow" it came as we felt it and the project was shut down when local elections took place and no politician wanted to burn his fingers with such a "risky project. to bad, but the complete fine concept is in our drawer and waits to be adapted to another context! please get in direct contact with us - calcies@calcaxy.com - to show us your idea and to receive the complete document (55 pages, all written in german).
